STOCKHOLDERS HAVE TO PAY THEIR FARE

Anti-Pass Act Of New Hampshire Causes Those Owning Stock In Road To Pay Way To Meeting.

Concord, N. H., May 27.—For the first time in many years through the passage of the anti-pass act by the legislature, stockholders of the Northern Railroad, a part of the Boston & Maine system, were compelled to pay their fare to the annual meeting held in this city today. In former meetings as well as those of several other railroads of New England, stockholders were permitted to ride to and from the meetings by presenting their stock certificates. This privilege was curtailed by the anti-pass act of Congress, and absolutely nullified by the statute passed by the recent session of the New Hampshire Legislature.

WOULD MAKE TRAMPS LABOR FOR LIVING

State Senator Burke Says Vagrants Should Be Segregated And Be Forced To Work.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—Senator Timothy Burke believes that all of the vagrants in the state should be gathered together and compelled to work for their living. At his request the legislature has passed a resolution instructing the state board of control to make an investigation of the plan and report the findings to the governor in the annual report for 1910.

"The vagrancy problem is one that should receive full consideration," said Senator Burke last night. "The great loss of life, the spread of crime and disease, the loss by fires and railroad wrecks brought about by this careless wandering population are but a few of the many evils."

"I think the state board of control should investigate the problem of establishing labor colonies on unimproved lands within this state. Holland and Belgium have similar systems in operation and I understand that great good has resulted. In Holland if a man is found to be a vagrant he is sent by the court to one of these labor institutions. Here he has to work, cleaning up the brush on farms or draining land and the like. If a man is brought before the court charged with being a vagrant and he claims that he is not, then the state will ask him if he is willing to accept employment. If he refuses, he is allowed to sign a contract, and employment is given him at pay on one of these labor plantations. This is generally for a period of three months. The regular vagrants are given their board and clothes for their work."

Senator Burke claims that the present system of dealing with vagrancy tends to scatter the evil throughout the country, rather than to curb or eliminate the evil. In the winter the tramps become a burden upon the city population and in the summer they stroll out in the country. The state of New York will conduct an investigation of the feasibility of the vagrancy labor colonies this year and Senator Burke declares the state has a great opportunity to deal with the problem. By the constitution passed by the assembly yesterday, after it has been through the senate, the board of control will thoroughly investigate the problem and the matter will come before the next session of the legislature, two years hence, to determine upon its inauguration in this state.

Rear-Admiral Pendleton is one of the veteran officers of the navy. He comes from Virginia and was graduated from the naval academy in 1867. During his career of forty-two years he served in all parts of the world and has occupied several important bureau posts. Recently he has been in command of the Philadelphia navy yard.

NEW LAW FORBIDS INSURANCE REBATES

New Statute Deals Severely With Agents Who Give Inducements In Fire Insurance Policies.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—Without heat of drum or flurry of trumpets a new law has been placed on the statute books that makes fire insurance rebating a criminal crime. The bill known as 255a was signed by the governor almost two weeks ago but in the rush of legislative business was lost sight of and, despite its importance, has not been commented upon generally.

The bill was introduced in the assembly early in the session at the request of a delegation of insurance men who expressed their desire to put a stop to the pernicious practice of fire insurance rebating. It is well known in Milwaukee that several agents are giving large rebates on fire insurance policies and the custom has grown to such tremendous proportions that certain agents who stood firm on the ground that it was bad business policy, have been driven out of business. Many of the largest business concerns in Milwaukee are known to have accepted heavy rebates and the agents have bowed to the practice to so large an extent that nowadays the agent who grants the biggest rebate gets the business in a large percentage of cases.

The making into law of bill 255a, it is predicted, will cause a furor in the state metropolises by the time that straw hats come into summer vogue and June's sun shines down on bald heads in Michigan street. The word has gone out that prosecutions under the new law will be started soon and that several agents will be called "upon the carpet."

The anti-rebate law provides that "no agent shall offer to pay or allow, or offer or agree to pay or allow, as an inducement to any insurance, any rebate of the premium paid, or payable under its policy, or any special favor, advantage, benefit, valuable consideration or inducement whatever not specified in its policy." Thus an agent who, in an effort to secure a good line of fire insurance gives an added inducement an accident policy to the prospective customer, is liable to suffer as the agent who pays back part of the premium.

The penalty under the new law is severe. When it is proven by a complaint that an agent has rebated he may be fined from $50 to $500 or sent to jail for six months. If the insurance commissioner is satisfied that the offense has been committed he is empowered to revoke the agent's or the company's license for three years.

WOULD ALLOW THEM TO SPEND ANY SUM

Substitute to Kay Bill Does Not Limit Expenditures But Keeps State Employees Out of Politics.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—When the Kay bill came up for indefinite postponement before the assembly yesterday which provides for the publication of literature and pictures of candidates by the state, Assemblyman Hainbrecht offered a substitute which sends the bill back to the committee for further consideration. The substitute presented by the Grand Rapids Assemblyman has two distinct features. First is publicly and second no state employee can in any way become interested in the campaign or contribute a dollar toward its furtherance.

This measure puts no limit upon the amount that may be expended but it compels every candidate for public office and every campaign disburser to file with the county clerk of his county the name of every political agent together with specific instructions as to the manner in which the money given him shall be spent. More than this he must state the amount of money that was given, a political agent to spend and in turn the campaign disburser must register with the county clerk within 48 hours after receiving the money just as lobbyists are compelled to register with the secretary of state today.

Receipts of all expenditures must be filed with the county officer instead of any political agent. Where a man is a candidate for office outside of the county the county clerk of his county must send a copy of his statement together with the names of all political agents and the amounts allowed them to spend to the secretary of state. This list shall be for public inspection. An itemized and sworn statement must be filed by every campaign disburser and every political agent in the county wherein the work was carried on.

"No holder of public position filled by appointment shall pay or contribute to aid or promote the nomination or election of any other person for public office," says one of the sections of the bill. "No person shall invite, demand or accept payment or contribution for campaign purposes." Failure to file an expense account within a reasonable time after the primary lapses the candidate to have his name appear on the general election ticket.

The penalties in the bill are stringent. Any person violating the act may be punished by a fine of not more than $500, or by both fine and imprisonment. Any person convicted of a breach of the law can not hold public office in the state for a period of four years.

DESIRE A FACTORY FOR BINDER TWINE

Farmers Trying to Get Bill Appropriating $400,000 For State Factory Put Through.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—The farmers of the Wisconsin legislature, relying around their bill to appropriate some $400,000 for the purpose of compiling and stocking a binder twine factory at the state prison at Vandalia, claim that they will enact their bill into law, notwithstanding the fact that the assembly killed a set of these bills last week by a vote of 41 to 40, breaking a previous vote of 37 to 37. Another similar set of bills is in the senate championed by Senator J. W. Thomas of Chippewa Falls and these bills have been held back by the committee on claims in the hope of defeating them at the last hours of the session when presumably many farmers have gone back to their weed-covered fields. Senator Thomas has campaigned for the bills, going to the extent of introducing a resolution requiring the committee on claims to report the bills to the senate, which proposition was the subject of several sensational debates in the senate in one of which Senator Huddell of Superior threatened to resign as chairman of the committee on claims if the resolution should be adopted. Last night, however, the committee surrendered, reported the bills to the senate with a recommendation for their passage and a vote was had, resulting 14 to 7 in favor of suspension of the rules and hastening action upon the bills. Should Senator Thomas succeed in getting this bill passed he will be a formidable candidate for governor as a farmers' advocate next year.

The senate committee on elections reported in favor of passage the so-called Mary Ann or second choice vote primary election bill, a similar bill to one which has already been debated and killed in the assembly.

Madison, Wis., May 27.—The assembly overrode Governor Davidson's veto of the Kubaska bill to give to the policy holders in Mutual companies individual accountings. The vote was 63 to 20 against the Governor. "The assembly killed the stubborn bill to allow railroads to engage in 'any unlawful business,' and not to restrict them to railroading." The senate killed the Husting bill to lengthen the open season for hunting ducks in the autumn, and also give a short season of spring shooting.

No Synonym Needed.
It is believed by at least one writer that it is because baldness in women has nearly always been studiously concealed that no gentle way of evading the blunt word "bald" has been evolved, in contrast with the many ways of dodging "fat," "stout" (which really means sturdy), "portly," "comfortable" and "roundabout" are instances of this evasion. But "bald" always remains "bald."

Learning About the Brain.
We are all physiologists nowadays, not with any care for bumps and bumps, but with a growing conviction that we are beginning to see, in faint outline, some facts that hang together and will some day go to make a good working theory of the life of the brain.

JULIA WARD HOWE NINETY YEARS OLD

Well Known Reformer and Author Of "Battle Hymn Of Republic" Reaches Advanced Age.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boston, Mass., May 27.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, writer, philosopher and reformer, celebrated here ninetieth birthday quietly today at her charming home on Beacon street. Her children, Mrs. Matilda Howe Elliott, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Mrs. Laura E. Richards and Prof. Marion Howe of Columbia spent the day with her and, with the exception of a few intimate friends, no visitors were received by the old lady. Mrs. Howe appeared in good health and spirits and seemed to have lost but little of her old-time energy and her interest for matters of national importance.

In the course of the day many beautiful and costly gifts of flowers arrived for the venerable jubilar from all parts of the city and many others bore the cards of admirers in other cities and states. Hundreds of congratulatory letters and telegrams from all parts of the world testified to the high esteem and admiration felt for the "Grand Old Woman of America" throughout the civilized world. As usual the Greek and Italian organizations of the city sent elaborate flower pieces in honor of Mrs. Howe's birthday. Dr. Howe, the deceased husband of Mrs. Howe, had fought with the Greeks in their struggle for independence and Mrs. Howe has been an ardent champion of the Greeks all her life. Both she and her husband were also deeply interested in the Italian struggle for liberty under Garibaldi, Cavour and Victor Emmanuel.

Out of consideration for Mrs. Howe's advanced years and her not too robust constitution, no celebration of an elaborate public character had been arranged. In former years Mrs. Howe's home was thrown open to visitors on the afternoon of her birthday but so many persons called on those occasions that the old lady was unusually quite exhausted by fatigue after the two hours' reception. Although Mrs. Howe is still in remarkably good health, it was considered wiser not to expose her to the strenuous duties of a public reception and for the last two years only the members of her family and a few particular friends were admitted to the small circle surrounding Mrs. Howe on her birthday.

Mrs. Howe received the congratulations of her intimate friends, sitting in her favorite armchair, and talked to them with animation of many matters of special interest to her, particularly the woman's suffrage movement. Mrs. Howe was a woman's suffrage champion in the far-off days when the propaganda was not as popular nor as much of a recognized movement as it is today. Then there were no wealthy society women to be found, willing to head the movement. There were no great statesmen admitting the justice of the cause and the very suggestion was attacked by men and women both as unwomanly impertinent and almost disloyal. The little band of brilliant women headed by Julia Ward Howe, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Mary A. Livermore, Susan B. Anthony, Frances E. Willard and others of like type and celebrity were not accorded even a respectful hearing in most cases, and their own sex was as discouraging as the men.

It was in recognition of Mrs. Howe's great services as the most famous pioneer of the woman's rights movement that her birthday was selected by the national woman's suffrage league to collect, throughout the United States the signatures of the gigantic "Votes-for-Women" petition which is to be presented to the next American congress. Mrs. Howe spoke interestingly with her visitors of the present state of the woman's suffrage matter and seemed confident of its ultimate success. She gave many reminiscences of the methods and experiences of the suffragettes of forty and fifty years ago.

Last year the New England Woman's Club, of which Mrs. Howe is the president, held a double celebration, the fortieth anniversary of the club's foundation and the 89th birthday of the president on the evening of Mrs. Howe's birthday and the venerable president attended the celebration for a short time. The strain of going through these functions proved a little too fatiguing for the old lady and the arrangement was changed this year. The club will celebrate its own anniversary and the birthday of its president by giving a breakfast at the hotel Somerset on Saturday morning, with Mrs. Howe as the guest of honor.

At six-thirty a delightful four-course dinner was served, fifty members and friends partaking of the beautiful spread. After the dinner a short program was given and concluded with a laughable farce entitled "Quits." The house was beautifully decorated with apple blossoms and other spring flowers and the whole entertainment was a decided success.

Potter. This chiefship is considered the best job in the navy department and the many friends of Rear Admiral are congratulating him upon the recognition of his services.

FRANK COLE AT TOP, SECRETARY TO ATTORNEY GENERAL GEORGE WICKERSHAM, AND W. R. PEDIGO AT BOTTOM, SECRETARY TO THE SECRETARY OF WAR, JACOB M. DICKINSON.

Washington, D. C.—Two young men whose faces and work are becoming familiar in the national capital came with the new cabinet. They are Frank Cole, Mr. Wickersham's private secretary in the attorney general's office, and W. R. Pedigo, Mr. Dickinson's private secretary in the war office. These men have both been closely allied with their superiors during the past and are making good in every way that could be desired at the present time. The office of private secretary is a very trying one, demanding the utmost tact and ability.

Semi-Solution.
Half the secret of happiness is to forget the unpleasant things. The other half is not to be found out.—Life.

HOME WORSHIP IS NEGLECTED.
Presbyterians Refuse to Say It Is "Thing of the Past."

Denver, Col., May 27.—Dr. James H. Frazer of Baltimore offered a resolution in the Presbyterian general assembly, calling upon the pastors, in view of the fact that family worship had become a "thing of the past," to organize the youth into more efficient Sunday school work in order to bring them more effectively into the care of the church.

Vice-Moderator Holt said he believed the resolution to be all right with the exception of the "worship" clause. Soon half a dozen watchful commissioners were on their feet demanding to know if the objectionable sentence would stand and thereby put the church on record as saying worship in the home is a thing of the past. Dr. Roberts, the clerk, made a quick correction, using the word "neglected," and trouble was avoided.

WHO BENDS THIS MONEY?
Panora (Iowa) Residents Get $100 Bills in Letters.

Panora, Ia., May 27.—Post Office inspectors have been asked to unravel the mystery surrounding the receipt by several residents of Panora of letters containing $100 bills. No signature is attached to the letters, though one of them bears the postmark of Portland, Ore.
Five persons admit having received money totaling $1,125. Mrs. Viola Lapociti, a widow, received $225 all in $10 bills with a note signed "your friend."

Substitute for Leather.
Seaweed, dust, goat's hair and Irish moss, compounded by a secret chemical process, is claimed to be, by its inventor, John Campbell, a perfect substitute for leather, vulcanite, wood and marble. As leather it makes workable soles for shoes.

WALL PAPER

A wall paper may be very beautiful yet utterly unsuitable. The first question is: What are you to make of your walls? Decorative in themselves? Or, simply a background for decoration? A self-tone wall paper is best where a large number of pictures are to be hung—elaborate designs are preferable in beautifying wall spaces.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE trouble with women," said an editor to me one day, "is that they sit back on their laurels. If a man does a good thing, beats the other newspapers and makes a scoop or writes the best story that is written on any particular subject, he goes ahead and tries to do it again. But if a woman does a good thing she sits back and contemplates it."

And I think that is a more or less just accusation.

I have known several girls who graduate from college with the highest honors and were never heard from afterwards. As far as I could find out they were sitting back contemplating those honors.

I believe success is more apt to spoil a woman than a man and I think the reason is that while the average man tries to do good work for the world's sake, the average woman tries to do good work for the sake of the average of her neighbors and competitors.

In school and college it is usually the girls who work for marks. I asked several girls once, "Would you rather get A in a course, realizing that your knowledge of the subject deserved a B, or B, realizing that you deserved an A?" And all of them said they would rather have the A. I put the same question to several of the men and three out of four said in substance: "Hang the marks! If I take a course it's because I want to know something about it. What's the use of an A if you don't know anything?"

I met a girl the other day who said, in speaking of her work, "I never compare my work with other people's. I don't care whether it's better or worse. That's not the point. I simply try to make it just as good work as I can possibly do. Of course, I don't reach that ideal, but I always keep it before me."

She is one of the very few women I know who could say that. I couldn't. I constantly find myself saying: "Well, that's as good as so-and-so could do."

"I've got my housecleaning done two weeks earlier than anyone on the street," I heard my neighbor say, "and I've taken up more carpets than any one, too."

And she's happy but not primarily for the worthy reason that her house is clean.

"I put up ten more jars of pickles than Mrs. Martin and they say she usually puts up more preserves than anyone in town," says the lady across the street.

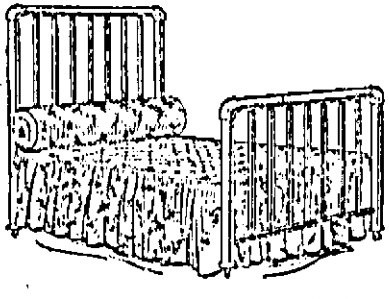

And she's happy but not, first of all, because she needs the forty jars of preserves.

It's a foolish attitude and those who take it will never live as sane and healthy and satisfying lives as they might otherwise.

Competition is a good enough spur, but life, whatever the poets say about it, is not a race.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM BONESTEEL FRIDAY

Remains of Well Known Old Resident of This City Will Be Interred on Friday.

Funeral services for the late William H. Bonesteel will be conducted at the home, 1218 Milton avenue, at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, Rev. H. C. Denison, officiating. The remains will rest at Oak Hill.

Mr. Bonesteel was born at Troy, N. Y., in 1844. He came west in 1863 and located in Janesville and soon after entered the employ of Allen & Pratt, the old west side millers. A few years later he engaged in business for himself, soon establishing a reputation for honesty and ability which he enjoyed until failing health compelled his retirement from active work.

In 1867 he was united in marriage to Miss Hattie Stewart, and the home founded more than forty years ago, was over a happy one. Next to his sacred precinct, the church claimed attention, and for many years the Bonesteel family were liberal supporters and loyal workers in the Methodist church.

Mr. Bonesteel was a large hearted man, generous to a fault. He was also an enthusiast, and the old friends who had the pleasure of working with him during the years of his active life, remember him as a man who never shirked responsibility, and who was always found in the front ranks ready and willing to perform his share. His religion was of the practical sort, an everyday religion with an emphasis for good.

The drama of life is full of tragedy. Men occupy the center of the stage today and tomorrow have retired from the busy scene, and the world loses sight of them.

Sometimes infinitesimally small men out of the race before they reach the age limit, and then the home and the wife who has shared uncomplainingly the ups and downs of the rugged journey, faces new responsibilities, but love is equal to the strain, and so the tragedy on a smaller stage goes on, until the day of final separation.

Then the wife sits in the shadow alone and calls back the memory of many long and happy years. Generous sympathy will be extended to the Bonesteel home in its hour of peculiar sadness.

Howard Henry Taylor

The funeral services of Howard Henry Taylor, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Taylor, were held this afternoon at 2:30 from the Taylor home. The services which were private were conducted by Rev. J. C. Hazen. The remains were laid at rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

NEW PRESIDENT OF WASHINGTON AERO CLUB.

The Washington Aero club is one of the most important organizations in development of aeronautics in the United States. It includes among its members many of the best known army officers and others men interested in ballooning and aldrilips.

W. F. Walsh, the mining king, has just been elected president of the Washington Aero club and the executive committee appointed includes Dr. A. G. Bell, Florence Nelson Page, Representative Butler Ames, General Greely, General Oliver and Willis Moore.

Dr. Bell was an enthusiastic supporter of Mr. Walsh as president and when seen last night, said:

"Mr. Walsh will make a fine president because of his public spirit and international acquaintance. Under his direction the Washington Aero club should become the best known club in the world."

Long Flight on Strauss Ended.

When the Helmholtz-Zoller announced recently the fact that Helmholtz and Strauss, composer of "Salome" and "Elektra," had been elected a member of the Academy, a neighboring journal's only comment was: "Endlich!" ("At last!") In explanation the Berliner Tagblatt says that Strauss' name had been before the academy as a candidate for membership for three years and that the position to his admission was led by Josef Jonckh. "The other party, in favor of Strauss, under the leadership of Professor Humperdinck, worked hard, however, and finally triumphed. The report that the Kaiser's influence was used to bring about Strauss' election is without foundation."

Peace.

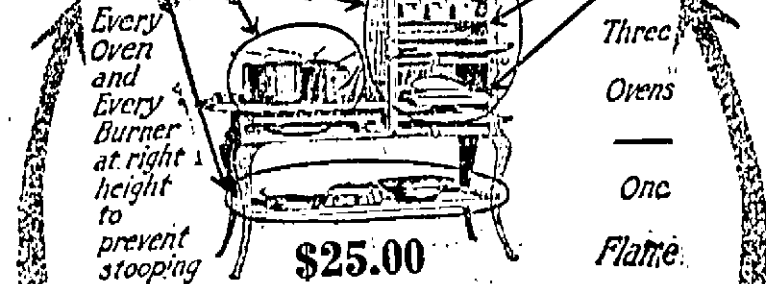

There will be universal peace as soon as the members of the standing armies are compelled to work as hard for their living as other people must.

In each case the damage was wrought by lightning. Had the buildings struck been properly rodged, the loss would have been reduced to a minimum.

THE RACE PROBLEM

The race problem is involved in the strike on the Georgia railroad, and just what the outcome will be is difficult to forecast. Colored firemen occupy the cars on most of the engines in the south, but this is as far as they ever get, as they are not permitted to run an engine.

An effort is now being made,
through the strike, to fill their places with white men who will eventually become engineers. It is a perplexing question, and may require federal aid to settle, as business of the government is involved.

The Augusta Chronicle takes a sensible view of the situation, recognizing the fact that the south is dependent on the colored man for labor, and therefore he should be protected. "The paper says:

"Inasmuch as the negro constitutes the bulk of the south's laboring population, to take away from him 'his right to labor'—side by side with white men' when necessary—would place the heaviest possible handicap upon the south itself; for it would not only have a surplus of idle negroes to content with, but a scarcity of labor in all industrial pursuits. Any other policy . . . would be nothing short of suicidal."

SENATOR LORIMER

The Chicago Inter Ocean has been on the wrong side of most political questions for the past year or more.
The paper could find but little to commend in President Roosevelt, was opposed to Taft, and supported Cannon during the last pre-convention campaign.

The election of Lorimer to the United States senate causes a good deal of elation in the office of the Inter Ocean, as it is the only Chicago paper which supported him. In endorsing him the paper says editorially:

"In the senate of the United States
many things count—intelligence, patriotism and character—but the greatest of these is character. All of these qualifications are possessed to a remarkable degree by Mr. Lorimer.
Moreover, they are so combined in him with political sagacity and political foresight as to give him the making of a real statesman."

"Among those to whom he is not known these statements may seem exaggerated. They are not."

"There probably is not a man in Chicago today who, knowing Mr.
Lorimer, does not realize that for absolute integrity, both in politics and out, for a keen sense of honor under all obligations, for unwavering loyalty to any declared purpose and for reckless adherence to any cause which he deems right, Mr. Lorimer stands high above any other man whom he has met in the public life of this day."

That Mr. Lorimer is a politician will not be questioned by anyone familiar with Chicago politics, and his experience in the House of Representatives will prove a valuable asset in the senate.
He will be found with the conservative wing of the party, which is to his credit."

THE RIGHT ATTITUDE

A dispatch from Grand Rapids, Michigan, says: "Harmony lodge, an organization of saloonkeepers, to which about 125 of the city's saloon-keepers belong, has adopted resolutions in the nature of an agreement to purge its own ranks of lawbreakers. The resolutions pledge any member to report to the lodge secretary any violation of the liquor laws by a member of the lodge."

If this policy had been generally adopted long ago the law and order crusade would have gained but little headway. Why manufacturers and dealers have been so slow to recognize this fact is difficult to understand.

The fight on the American saloon today is more than a temperance fight. In fact the prohibition party, as an organization, has so little to do with that it is not recognized as a factor.

It is broader than all parties or creeds because back of it is public sentiment so thoroughly aroused and united that it enlists the support of men who drink as well as the total abstainers.

People have become tired of lawlessness and will no longer tolerate it. The saloon men have had ample warning, and while now there is a disposition to reform they have waited too long and many localities are continuing to vote dry.

If the saloonmen of Janesville are at all wise they will cheerfully comply with the provisions of the contract under which they are doing business. The Sunday and closing laws should not only be observed, but screws should be voluntarily removed, and all other regulations complied with. Laws are not a hardship and when they are respected, rather than feared, obedience becomes a pleasure.

Coleman C. Clinton, a labor union enthusiast from Oregon, journeyed east to Kansas to be married but balked at the ceremony when he discovered that the marriage certificate was not decorated with a union label.
The magistrate, wanting his fee, and the intended bride, desiring a husband, the young man was accompanied with a trade mark. That's the sort of loyalty which has cursed the coast states for many years.

The city of Independence, Kansas, has been rent in twain by a factional fight, for a dozen years or more, in which two banks and two leading families were conspicuous. But for this fact, it is claimed that the city might have 50,000 population instead of half that number. That's most as bad as a river running through the town.

The "Mary Ann" bill, in a new dress, was trotted out by the senate yesterday, and the assembly will have another opportunity to sidetrack
it. The binding twine bill was also reintroduced, and threats are freely made that unless favorable action is taken, all appropriations will be held up.

English scientists have discovered that the world is 210,000,000 years old.
In the absence of proof, the statement will not be questioned. The same authority places the age of the sun at 115,000,000 years.

The legislature acted wisely in amending the obnoxious insurance laws. Several other reforms, which have worked to the detriment of the state, should be amended.

The new game law provides for 60 wardens to protect the fish. Is this in addition to the small army of politicial workers appointed to preserve the game?

"Billy" Lorimer will help "Uncle" Shelby Cullom to represent Illinois in the United States senate. The state is entitled to sympathy.

The earthquake zone now takes in southern Wisconsin and people will not need to visit the coast for a shake sensation.

The investigating committee should be given a civil service examination and put on the regular pay roll.

FOR FILLING BOTTLES

Apparatus Pumps Liquor Into Them
and Gas Does Not Escape.

Bottlers and liquor dealers and people who are fond of good wine will appreciate the value of the invention of a German for filling bottles. The device will fill bottles more rapidly and without waste, and the consumers will rejoice that the liquid comes to them in the same condition that it is in the keg. The apparatus consists of a pump arrangement, the bottom end of the pipe of which fits into the bung-hole of the cask of wine, beer or whiskey, from which the bottles are to be filled. At the top of the pipe is a spigot, which fits into the neck of a bottle. The bottle rests on a strong spring, which keeps it always closely pressed to the spigot. In the middle of the pipe is a pump, and by working the handle of this air is pumped into the keg and the liquid is forced into the bottle. When the bottle is filled from a cask by the above method of letting the liquor run into a funnel, there was always a certain amount of foam.

his most famous novels are "The

If the little lad at your knee should inherit $1,000,000 in money, would you be glad or sorry?

Think the proposition over carefully
before you answer.

That large sum has been left by his great-uncle to Hunt T. Dickenson of Augusta, Ga.

And young Dickenson is but nine years old.

Judged by what he says, the father of this boy is really sorry his son should have inherited $1,000,000. He fears the effect of it on the boy's future.

Mr. Dickenson says he will keep the news of his inheritance from Hunt as long as possible.

Says this anxious father:

"That is enough money to ruin any boy. I do not want my boy to grow up feeling that he need never work—a false idea. I want him to be a plain, honest man. I want him to do some of the world's work and learn that the greatest comfort in life is to know that one has done something to make the world better."

Wise Mr. Dickenson!

He knows that much money is more apt to be a curse than a blessing.

If Hunt Dickenson grows up to feel that whatever happens to other people he is sure of plenty without effort, he may put himself up on a pedestal and come to feel that he is different from those that toil.

Even should he resist the temptation to squander his money in riotous living he may come to think that he is modest of different pity from the ordinary men.

And that would make him cold and hard and selfish.

He would come to believe that he is in the world to be ministered to rather than to minister—that he is here to get what he thinks is coming to him rather than to give the world what is coming to it.

He would lose all touch with his fellows.

Is there any wonder why Mr. Dickenson should dread the influence of those millions on his son's career?

A boy thus handicapped has no fair chance with the poor boy who must fight his way up to success, keeping elbow touch with the world, making himself strong by earning what he gets, developing his character and making himself a useful citizen.

Mr. Dickenson may well fear the influence of $1,000,000 on the shoulders of his son.

GOES FROM HERE TO I. O. O. F. CONVENTION OF GERMAN EMPIRE

Dr. F. X. Schaeffer, of Milwaukee, Vice President of Patriarcha Militant, is in City for Grand Lodge Session.

Dr. F. X. Schaeffer, of Milwaukee, vice president of the Patriarcha Militant, a member of the Milwaukee I. O. O. F. lodge, and a director of the Wisconsin Humane society, is the first of the prominent visiting Odd Fellows to arrive here for the convention. At the Grand hotel this morning the Doctor expressed himself as delighted with all he had seen in Janesville—the city hall, courthouse, library, schools, newspaper, plant, hotels, and other public and semipublic buildings—and declared that he had seldom seen more imposing or up-to-date offices in cities of 50,000 population. When he leaves the convention here, Dr. Schaeffer will go direct to New York City, where he is to embark on June 5 for Germany. At Milwaukee, province of Thuringia, he will attend the session of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., of the German Empire which will be in progress from June 21 to 25. Some years ago he attended a similar gathering at Nuremberg and was given a memorable reception as the representative of the 1,600,000 Odd Fellows in America. Ever since that time he has been receiving pressing invitations to pay a return visit and has appropriated his summer vacation for that purpose this year. He will spend three months abroad, visiting in Switzerland and Austria before his return.

GENTRY BROS. RAN AFOUL SECOND DAY OF BAD WEATHER THIS SEASON AT JANSVILLE

But Picketed Loss of $2,000 Cheerfully—Pulled Stakes Before Time Set for Night Performance.

Gentry Brothers' circus, which began its tour on April 17, ran into its first two days of desoperately bad weather at Mendota, Ill., on Tuesday, and at Janesville yesterday. But the management poked its loss of $2,000 cheerfully as business had otherwise been first-class. The performance was given here yesterday afternoon before an audience of about one hundred and fifty people who braved the rainstorm and were well rewarded. The pony and st. Bernard dog that jumped over and clown and the leaping greyhound and clown and the elephant and the lion were all bucked somersault on the tight wire were fouling the brief spell of fair weather which followed the afternoon performance and was loaded up for Milwaukee when the second storm struck.

STONE-CRUSHER IS A KNOTTY PROBLEM

Aldermen As Yet Unable to Decide Whether it is Advisable to Re-new Lease of Barnes Quarry.

Aldermen Sheridan, Buchholz, Kimball, Clark and Evans, representing the common council as a whole, this morning made an inspection of the stone crusher plant but reached no decision as to what their future course should be with regard to renewing the lease of the quarry. The old lease expires in June and it is taken for granted that Andrew Barnes, the owner, will make no better terms than $300 a year rental for the future. It is now necessary to remove an upper stratum of earth from five to six feet deep in order to get at the rock and the question has arisen as to whether it would not be more economical for the city to buy a quarry of its own or have the crushed rock shipped in from Devil's Lake or some other neighboring point. The idea which should have capacity for a week's output, will hold no more than the amount of material turned out in a day and a half run when the teams are not hauling it away, and there has been much enforced idleness at the plant in the past. It is estimated that with the superintendent, engineer, and five or six men, it costs about $15 a day to operate and, once under way, it is generally necessary to keep the wheels turning until the snow flies. While some of the corner stones is available, the supply of top dressing left over from last season is exhausted and a surfacing of clay or gravel may have to be put on some of the small areas of repair work on various streets. When the work of modernizing the street begins, however, the proper sort of material will be in instant demand and definite conclusions regarding the whole proposition will have to be reached in short order. William Dulin and William Brown are among the candidates for the position of superintendent of the crusher plant.

FIGHT FOR TENNIS HONORS TO BE CLOSE

Quite a Number Are Already Playing in Mid-Season Form and Contests Will Be Interesting.

With the hard practice which they continually put in, the members of the Y. M. C. A. tennis club are getting into fine shape for the games which they played this summer. In fair weather the grounds are used almost continually, most of the preliminary games being played after four o'clock. Other players practice during the noon hour and some of the ardent ones who are unable to make use of the courts at other times assemble there early in the morning before going to work. The grounds are kept in good shape by Physical Director Birch, who spares neither time nor pains at his work. As a consequence the courts are in the best condition possible.

Quite a number of the followers of the game are already showing mid-season form in their playing. Among those who will probably try for honors in the championship series are Frank Jackson, R. Loveley, F. G. Wolecott, and J. C. Hagen. Others will probably appear later, as they have had more practice to make the contests more interesting and leave the outcome in doubt until the final game.

Junior Hike Postponed

The cross-country hike which the A. Juniors of the association were to have taken with Physical Director Birch has been postponed for a week on account of the bad condition of the country for traveling on foot, because of the recent rains.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Cash Bait Only Lure: Frank J. Kane, E. W. Miller, Dr. E. H. Dudley, Joe Alderman, Arthur Jones, M. R. O'Connell, and Dr. R. W. Elden were boxing the Janesville pitman to Indiana Ford on Tuesday, the opening day of the fishing season. It is understood that each bait "proved" the only effective lure for adult members of the fishy tribe and that the "professionals" have since been busied refilling their depleted fish-boxes.

Wanted to be Cowboys: Robert and Fred Strombon, age 17 and 15 years, respectively, arrived here from Chicago last evening with a 22 calibre revolver and several hundred shells. They were taken in tow by the officers and after spending a night at the city hall, were glad to abandon their wild intentions of making the Wild West their home. They were taken about as "green" a pair of youngsters as ever came out of a great city.

Police Chiefs' Convention: Chief of Police George M. Appleby hopes to be able to attend the state convention of police department chiefs which will be held in Milwaukee on June 8. The handling of prisoners, detective work, the best methods of identification among the various departments of the state will be some of the subjects handled by Chief Jansson of Milwaukee and other eminent executives.

Stay Away Bill Bradley: William Bradley, the sweet singer of Rockford, Ill., who is now in the city, was here on Tuesday, the 26th, when he was taken in tow by the officers and after spending a night at the city hall, were glad to abandon their wild intentions of making the Wild West their home. They were taken about as "green" a pair of youngsters as ever came out of a great city.

LIGHTNING BOLT'S STARTLING TRICKS

Circus and Fourth of July Performances Gone Through with by Lightning Last Night.

Plowing two deep furrows in the ground, doing a light-race stunt on a wire fence, at the same time lifting one of the fence posts completely out of the ground and raising a cloud of dust fifty feet high from a cloud of dust many people who witnessed the feats performed by a bolt of lightning which struck the hill on South Washington street during the progress of the storm last night. The lightning, which was followed by a terrific peal of thunder, struck the ground about forty feet from the house of George Hood, who lives at 213 South Washington street, plowed two deep furrows in the ground as neatly as any plow could do, hit the gravel pit with the effect of a third, and then, jumping south across the road, and after tearing a fence post out of the ground, created some dazzling fourth of July effects on the fence wires. No damage was done, although residents in the immediate vicinity of the gravel pit were badly frightened.

At the State Institute for the Blind the storm also played strange freaks. A large maple, standing near the weighing scales, was untouched, but its roots were twisted as though rooted out by logs. The lightning played through the halls and corridors of the building very vividly, but did no damage. At the Y. M. C. A. further the lightning was especially vivid and a blue flame played about the gas fixtures and caused a break in the electric service for the building.

CORNELIUS J. M'GINLEY DIED THIS AFTERNOON

Passed Away at His Home, 417 Hickory Street Shortly After Three Today.

Cornelius J. McGinley passed to the life beyond this afternoon shortly after three o'clock, after an illness of some two weeks' duration. For many years he was one of the best known players which Janesville had furnished to the minor leagues and later affiliated as umpire in several leagues. For six years he conducted the clear store on the bridge now owned by Edward Connell. He was forty-nine years of age and leaves to mourn his loss a son, Robert, aged fourteen, and a widow. He was born in Janesville, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McGinley, still residing here. Three brothers, John, James and Dennis, and three sisters, Mrs. Anna Mahon, Miss Winifred, and Miss Mary McGinley survive him.

GRAND ARMY POST HAS LOST BUT FOUR MEMBERS

Since Last Memorial Day and Spanish War Veterans' Roster Remains intact.

Since last Memorial Day but four of the local Grand Army veterans have been called to "take up their 'out' posts on the livelong fields of green," and when the rapid thinning of the ranks in the country at large is taken into consideration, the loss in numbers is gratifyingly small. The four new graves which will be strewn with flowers by the members of W. H. Sargent Post No. 28 this year, are those of J. W. Wray, whose death occurred on Sept. 28, 1908; A. F. Spoon, who died on Nov. 23; and P. J. Bogardus, who was called to his reward last week. All excepting Mr. Bogardus were members of the local organization. The Post has a membership of ninety-five and the death list is said to be the smallest for any year in its history. Though it has a large roster, Harry L. Clifford Camp of the United Spanish American War Veterans has not lost a member since last Memorial Day. If the weather is propitious the organizations of both Beloit and Janesville will participate in the observances here. Flowers will be spread on the waters of the Rock river in memory of the fallen sailors, as was done last year.

TOO BUSY TO LEAVE.

The porch this summer will surely be full of busy embroilers. Miss Harwick was unable to pack trunks today, so will leave tomorrow night.

MARVEL FLOUR

has never been bleached, and never will be bleached, because we use only the highest grade of wheat and spend plenty of time and money in the natural perfect milling of all flour that bears our name. We don't have to change our plant to comply with the law. Order MARVEL Flour from your grocer now. If he can't supply you, send us his name and we'll see that he does.

Don't eat baker's bread unless you know that it is made from unbleached flour, and demand that that flour be MARVEL. We mill only the highest grade hard wheat, and yet our flour costs no more than the poorly made and bleached product. You will make better and more bread, cake or pastry with MARVEL than you will with any flour sold today. Try it and satisfy yourself. It's pure, healthful, nourishing and economical.

SCIENTISTS ASSIGN

CAUSE OF QUAKE

Yesterday's Seismic Disturbance Generally Felt Throughout

Four States.

There are some who set forth the claim that the quake felt in Janesville yesterday morning was the second seismic disturbance, the first having been felt at midnight of Tuesday.

Others expect a third shock to follow, believing in the mystic number three.

Both these theories are doubtful, however, and the shock which was felt yesterday morning was without doubt the only one.

It has always been held that Wisconsin, Illinois and the other central states were not in the earthquake zone

but according to scientists in Chicago

University, Beloit College and at the University of Wisconsin, this idea has been disproved. Different views are given as to the direct cause of the quake of yesterday, but all the prominent men of science who are in this region believe it was a slip in the interior region of the earth, below the

When you see "Kayser" in the hem you have the finest silk gloves in existence. They have been so for 25 years.

But you may get a vastly inferior make unless you look in the hem.

The Woman Who Made A Mistake

Some women pay the Kayser price for gloves not half so good.

They get gloves of poor fabric, poor finish, poor fit; yet they think they are getting the Kayser.

They failed to look in the hem.

Every woman wants the Kayser gloves. They want the perfect fit and finish, the patent tips, the guarantee in every pair.

They want the satisfaction they always have had, as a result of our infinite skill.

The way to get them is to watch the hem. Refuse gloves not marked "Kayser."

MONUMENT TO GETTYSBURG SOLDIERS TO BE DEDICATED, MAY 30TH.

Harleburg, Pa.—President Taft has consented to be the chief speaker at the dedication of the Gettysburg monument on May 30. The beautiful monument, 66 feet in height, has been erected by the United States government at a cost of $75,000. It stands "The Angle" on the battlefield made so famous. It is in memory of the regular soldier who fought and died there.

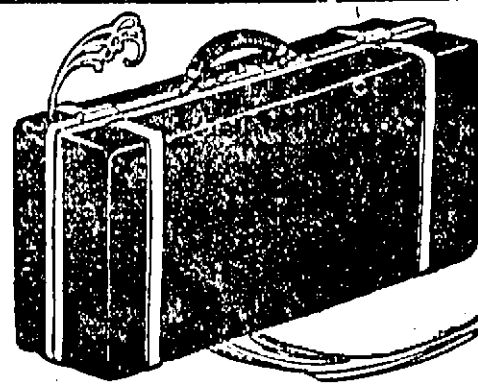

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Advisor, in Plain English or, Medical Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, paper-bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is also barely possible that persistent, enthusiastic advertising of competitors might some day—mind, we say it MIGHT—tempt a few of these old, dyed-in-the-wool, got-the-habit customers to stray from the straight and narrow path leading to the door of the old, established house to a newer, more progressive hustling younger merchant.

The BLACK BAG

By Louis Joseph Vance

Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

Kirkwood rose, expectant. There was a swish of draperies, and a moment later he was acknowledging the totally unlooked-for entrance of the mistress of the house. He had thought to see Calendar, presuming him to be the man closeted with Mrs. Hallam; but, whoever that had been, he did not accompany the woman. Indeed, as she advanced from the doorway Kirkwood could hear the man's footsteps on the stairs.

"Dorothy Calendar," Mrs. Hallam rose alertly.

"This is Mr. Kirkwood?" The note of inquiry in the well-trained voice—a very alluring voice and one pleasant to listen to, he thought—made it seem as though she had asked, point blank, "Who is Mr. Kirkwood?"

He bowed, discovering himself in the presence of an extraordinarily handsome and interesting woman, a woman of years which as yet had not told upon her, of experience that had not failed to harden her, at least in so far as her exterior charm of personality was involved—a woman, in brief, who bore close inspection well despite an elusive effect of maturity, not without its attraction for men. Kirkwood was impressed that it would be very easy to learn to like Mrs. Hallam more than well—with her approval.

Although he had not anticipated it, he was not at all surprised to recognize in the woman who, if he were not mistaken, had slipped to Calendar that evening in the dining room of the Pines.

"I am Mrs. Hallam. You were asking for Mr. Calendar?"

"He was to have been here at this hour, I believe," said Kirkwood.

"Yes?" There was just the right indication of surprise in her carefully controlled tone.

He became aware of an undercurrent of feeling that the woman was estimating him shrewdly with her fine, direct eyes. He returned her regard with admiring interest. They were gray-green eyes, deep set, but large, a little shallow, a little changeable, calling to mind the sea on a windy, cloudy day.

Below stairs a door slammed. "I am not a detective, Mrs. Hallam," announced the young man suddenly. Mr. Calendar required a service of no less than a dozen of his kind in natural consequence, if it was Mr. Calendar who left this house just now I am wasting time."

"It was not Mr. Calendar." The lined brows arched in surprise, real or pretended, at his first blurted words and relaxed. Amused, the woman laughed deliciously. "But I am expecting him any moment. He was to have been here half an hour since. Won't you wait?"

She indicated, with a gracious gesture, a chair and took for herself one end of aavenport. "I'm sure he won't be long now."

"Thank you, I will return, if I may," Kirkwood moved toward the door.

"But there's no necessity." She seemed insistent on detaining him, possibly because she questioned his motive, possibly for her own diversion.

Kirkwood deprecated his refusal with a smile. "The truth is, Miss Calendar is waiting in a cab outside."

"Dorothy Calendar?" Mrs. Hallam rose alertly. "But why should she wait there? To be sure, we've never met, but I have known her father for many years."

She swung about quickly, preceding him to the door and down the stairs. "I am sure Dorothy will come in to wait if I ask her," she told Kirkwood in a high, sweet voice. "I'm so anxious to know her. It's quite absurd, really, of her to stand on ceremony with me when her father made an appointment here. I'll run out and ask."

Mrs. Hallam's slim white fingers turned latch and knob, opening the street door, and her voice died away as she stepped out into the night. Then, with a sudden, imperative gesture, she half turned toward him. "But," she exclaimed, perplexed, gazing to right and left—"but the cab, Mr. Kirkwood?"

He was on the stoop a second later. Standing beside her, he stared blankly. To the left the Strand corner, the stream of its night life in high spate; on the right lay the embankment, comparatively silent and deserted, its brilliant with its high swung lights. Between the two, quiet Craven street ran, short and narrow and wholly innocent of any form of equipage.

CHAPTER VII.
"Mrs. Hallam," he stammered, "I—"

She lifted her shoulders impatiently and with a quick movement stepped back across the threshold, where she paused, a rounded arm barring the entrance, one hand grasping the doorknob, as if to shut him out at any moment.

"I'm awaiting your explanation," she said coldly.

He grinned with nervousness, striving to penetrate the mental processes of this handsome Mrs. Hallam. She seemed to regard him with a suspicion which he thought inexorable. Did she suppose he had spirited Dorothy Calendar away and then called to apprehend her of the fact, or that he was some sort of adventurer who had manufactured a plausible yarn to gain him access to her house, or—barking back to her original theory—that he was an emissary from Scotland Yard? Probably she distrusted him on the latter hypothesis. The reflection left him more at ease.

"I am quite as mystified as you, Mrs. Hallam," he began. "Miss Calendar was here at this door in a four wheeler or not ten minutes ago, and—"

"Then where is she now?"

"Tell me where Calendar is," he retorted, inspired, "and I'll try to answer you!"

But her eyes were blank. "You mean?"

"That Calendar was in this house when I came; that he left, found his daughter in the cab and drove off with her. It's clear enough."

"You are quite mistaken," she said thoughtfully. "George Calendar has not been here this night."

He wondered that she did not seem to resent his imputation. "I think not."

"Listen!" she cried, raising a warning hand, and relaxing her vigilant attitude, moved forward once more to peer down toward the embankment.

A cab had cut in from that direction and was bearing down upon them with a brisk rumble of hoofs. As it approached, Kirkwood's heart, that had lightened, was weighed upon again by disappointment. It was no four wheeler, but a hansom, and the open wings of the apron, disclosing a white triangle of linen surmounted by a glowing spot of fire, betrayed the sex of the fare too plainly to allow of further hope that it might be the girl returning.

At the door the cab pulled up sharply and a man tumbled hastily out upon the sidewalk.

"Here!" he cried throatily, tossing the cabby his fare, and turned toward the pair upon the doorstep, evidently surmising that something was amiss, for he was Calendar in proper person and a sight to upset in a twinkling Kirkwood's ingeniously built castle of suspicion.

"Mrs. Hallam!" he cried, out of breath. "Is my daughter here?" And then, catching sight of Kirkwood's countenance: "Why, hello, Kirkwood!"

He saluted him with a dubious air. The woman interrupted hastily.

"Please come in, Mr. Calendar. This gentleman has been inquiring for you, with an astonishing tale about your daughter."

"Dorothy?" Calendar's moonlike visage was momentarily divested of any trace of color. "What of her?"

"You had better come in," advised Mrs. Hallam brusquely.

The fat adventurer hopped hurriedly across the threshold, Kirkwood following. The woman shut the door and turned with back to it, nodding significantly at Kirkwood as her eyes met Calendar's.

"Well, well?" snapped the latter impatiently, turning to the young man. But Kirkwood was thinking quickly. For the present he contented himself with a deliberate statement of fact. "Miss Calendar has disappeared."

"It gave him an instant's time. 'There's something fishy!' he told himself. 'These two are playing at cross purposes. Calendar's no fool. He's evidently a crook to boot. As for the woman, she's had her eyes open for a number of years. The main thing's Dorothy. She didn't vanish of her own initiative. And Mrs. Hallam knows or suspects more than she's going to tell. I don't think she wants Dorothy found. Calendar does. So do I. Ergo, I'm for Calendar."

"Disappeared?" Calendar was barking at him. "How? When? Where?"

"Within ten minutes," said Kirkwood. "Here! Let's get it straight."

And he told what had happened, mentioning that he had not paid the cab driver.

"Thanks," said Calendar dryly. He bent his head in thought for an instant, then looked up and fixed Mrs. Hallam with an unprejudiced eye. "I say," he demanded explosively, "there wasn't any one here that knew—eh?"

Her eyes wavered and fell before his, and Kirkwood remarked that her underlip was curiously drawn in.

"I heard a man leave as Mrs. Hallam joined me," he volunteered helpfully and with a suspicion of malice. "And after that—I paid no attention at the time—it seems to me I did hear a cab in the street."

"Ow!" interjected Calendar, eying the woman steadily and employing an exclamation of combined illumination and inquiry more typically British than anything Kirkwood had yet heard from the man.

For her part, the look she gave Kirkwood was sharp with fury. It was more; it was a mistake, a flaw in her diplomacy, for Calendar interpreted it. Unconsciously he grasped her bare arm with his fat hand.

"Tell me who it was!" he demanded in an ugly tone.

She freed herself with a twist and stepped back, a higher color in her cheeks, a flash of anger in her eyes.

"Mr. Mulready," she retorted defiantly. "What of that?"

"I wish I was sure," declared the fat adventurer, exasperated. "As it is, I bet a dollar you've put your foot in it, my lady. I warned you of that blackguard. There! The mischief's done. We won't say over it. One moment."

He begged it with a wave of his hand, stood pondering briefly, fumbled for his watch, found and consulted it. "It's the barest chance," he muttered. "Perhaps we can make it."

"What are you going to do?" asked the woman.

"Give Mr. Mulready a run for his money. Come along, Kirkwood! We haven't a minute. Mrs. Hallam, permit us." She stepped aside, and he brushed past her to the door. "Come, Kirkwood!"

It seemed to take Kirkwood's company for granted, and the young man was not inclined to argue the point. Meekly enough he fell in with Calendar on the sidewalk. Mrs. Hallam followed them out. "You won't forget?" she called tentatively.

"I'll phone you if we find out anything," Calendar jerked the words unceremoniously over his shoulder as, linking arms with Kirkwood, he drew him swiftly along. They heard her shut the door. Instantly Calendar stopped. "Look here, did Dorothy have a small parcel with her?"

"She had a Gladstone bag."

"Oh, the devil, the devil!" Calendar started on again, muttering distractedly. As they reached the corner he disengaged his arm. "We've a minute and a half to reach Charing Cross park, and I think it's the last best. You set the pace, will you? But remember I'm an old man and—"

They began to run, the one easily, the other lumbering after like an old fashioned square rigged ship paced by a liner.

The Thames appeared before them, a river of bit on whose burnished surfaces lights swam in long winding streaks and oily blobs. By the floating pier a county council steamboat strained its bow, snoring huskily. Bells were jingling in her engine room as the two gained the head of the sloping gangway.

Kirkwood slipped a shilling down on the ticket window ledge. "Where to?" he cried back to Calendar.

"Cherry Gardens pier," rasped the winded man. He stumbled after Kirkwood, groaning with exhaustion. Only the tolerance of the pier employees gained them their end. The steamer was held some seconds for them. As Calendar staggered to its deck the gangway was jerked in the last hawser cast off. The boat sheered wide on the river, then shot in, arrow-like, to the pier beneath Waterloo bridge.
